ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

My deepest debt of gratitude goes first and foremost to my supervisor Dr. Pauthang Haokip, who made me successful to complete the dissertation. I owe everything to him for his guidance, supervision and encouragement throughout the process of writing this thesis.

My sincere thanks also go to all the faculty members of the Department of Linguistics, Assam University, Silchar for their constant source of inspiration and encouragement.

I want to express my sincere gratitude to many people who supported and contributed to me at every stage of writing this thesis, there are not enough words and there is not enough space here to thank each individual. First, I would like to thank the Khoibu community for welcoming me into their lives and sharing with me their language and culture. Particularly, to the people of Khangsim village for opening doors and spending many hours with me to record their language. I will never forget the love and hospitality they showed me during my field research in Khangsim village. My special thanks go to Mosyel Syelsaangthyel Khaling and his wife A.S Vayola for their exceptional hospitality during my field work who gave me a homely environment. My association with Donyaishen Hongsha (Maringlane) and his family are so cherishable. Finally I thank Mosyel Syeltlungphom Khaling from Nungourok village for helping me.

I thank my family members for their love, understanding, patience and encouragement. Especially my wordless thank goes to my father Laishram Bishambhor Singh and my mother Laishram Thoibi Devi for their unceasing support morally and physically in different stage of my research work. Without their support, this research would not have come to completion.

Last, but not the least, I would like to thank my fellow scholars at the department of Linguistics, Assam university for their moral support. My special thanks go to W. Pinky Devi, research scholar of my department for her unceasing support and encouragement in the completion of my thesis.
