I would like to express my indebtedness and gratitude to several persons for the support and extending help to me in completing this work. I extend my whole hearted gratitude to Prof. Sudeshna Purkayastha who supervised my research and gave me her most valuable guidance, innovative ideas, constant encouragement and constructive criticism throughout the work.

I also owe my gratitude to Lt. Dipankar Banerjee for providing me with useful suggestions in choosing the topic. I extend my heartfelt thanks to Prof. Apurba Kumar Baruah, Prof. Manorama Sharma, Prof. Chandan Kumar Sharma, Prof. Sajal Nag, Prof. Alok Tripathi, Dr. Suryasikha Pathak, Dr. Suparna Roy, Dr. Jems Guite, Dr. Vinoy kumar Rao for their valuable suggestions at various stages of the research work. I am very thankful to Prof. Projit kumar Palit, Head, Department of History, Assam University, for his valuable suggestions.

During the course of my research Indian Council of Historical Research (ICHR) provided me with financial assistance for one year in the form of Junior Research Fellowship (JRF) which enabled me to visit field works and libraries. My sincere thanks go to the librarian and the staff of the family archives of Jyotiprasad Agarwala. My special thanks to Mina Agarwala and Minakshi Agarwala for providing their valuable information. My sincere thanks goes to the Librarians of State Archives of Dispur, National Library at Kolkata, Library of ICHR at Guwahati, Central Library of NEHU, Central Library of Tezpur University, District Library at Silchar, Central Library of Gauhati University.

This work is also the result of warmth and care I received from several people. I am also grateful to all my friends who have been constant source of encouragement. Above all, I owe it all to Almighty for granting me the wisdom, health and strength to undertake this research task and enabling me to its completion.

And, last, but most all, I owe my deepest gratitude to my father who shall forever be an inspiration to me.
