Acknowledgments

It would not have been possible to write this doctoral thesis without the help and support of the kind people around me, to only some of whom it is possible to give particular mention here.

Foremost, I would like to express my sincere gratitude to my research supervisor Prof. K.V. Nagraj for the continuous support of my Ph. D study and research, for his patience, motivation, enthusiasm, and immense knowledge. I have been extremely lucky to have a supervisor who cared so much about my work, and who responded to my questions and queries so promptly. His guidance helped me at all times of research and during the writing of this thesis. I could not have asked for a better advisor and mentor for my Ph.D study.

Above all, I would like to thank my wife Ritu Chaturvedi for her personal support and great patience at all times. She stood by me through the good times and bad. I would especially like to thank my amazing daughter Radhika and son Rishabh for the love, support, and constant encouragement I have gotten over the years. In particular, I would like to thank my parents, my brother, and my sisters. You are the salt of the earth, and I undoubtedly could not have done this without you. My mere expression of thanks likewise does not suffice.

The good advice, support and friendship of my childhood chum, Vipul Mudgal has been invaluable on both academic and personal fronts, for which I am extremely grateful. You have inspired me to work hard and restored confidence in my abilities that I will carry for the rest of my life. Thank you for being such an integral part of my personal and professional life.

Completing this work would have been all the more difficult were it not for the support and logistical help provided by the good friends of Centre for the study of Developing Societies (CSDS), in training coders and helping in SPSS analysis. I also wish to thank members of staff at the Centre for Women's Development Studies (CWDS) for providing access to a specialized research resource centre for comprehensive collection of published and unpublished material relating to Indian women.

Finally, I would like to thank my colleague Ms. Shruti Nagpal, for her kindness, friendship and support in making sure that I did not get carried away with academic jargon or with journalistic simplifications and also in helping me tremendously in editing and shaping my Thesis. Her intellectual contribution to this thesis and the whole process of learning is immense.
